Legal and Educational Rights of Pregnant and Parenting Teens

Can a pregnant teen leave school to receive medical care? Is she allowed to graduate with her friends? What happens when she leaves school to have her baby and then wants to come back? The answers to these and a myriad of other practical questions are addressed in this training that focuses on the civil and education rights of pregnant and parenting teens. The attorney's will also discuss the issues for teen parents regarding child custody. How do you calculate child support? Who can get legal custody of your child? There will be time to have a 15 minute consultation after the presentation, from 3:00 to 4:00. This will be done on a first come, first serve basis with about 12 time slots at this time. Referrals will be given for those unable to see an attorney at the training.
